

MAY HAVE GUARDS TO PREVENT ESCAPE OF THAW FROM PRISON

CANADIAN SHERIFF IS ANXIOUS TO RETAIN NOTED PRISONER IF IT IS POSSIBLE.

ATTORNEYS IN MIX-UP

Thaw's Legal Representatives Do Not Know Who is in Charge of the Case As Yet.

Sherbrooke, Quebec, August 23.—Out of the tangle of legal red tape surrounding the case of Harry Thaw detained in the Sherbrooke jail as a fugitive from Matteawan jail, issued this afternoon what was understood to be an ultimatum from the immigration authorities. It was that Thaw if he is not released by the Canadian authorities would be deported to New York, N. Y., as an undesirable after his arraignment in court here on Wednesday and that then the Canadian authorities would wash their hands of the affair.

Thaw's legal representatives do not know who is in charge of the case as yet. The Canadian authorities would wash their hands of the affair.

This puts the next step in the case squarely up to the prisoner himself, a situation said to be very pleasing to him.

His lawyers conferred with him all forenoon, but with what result was not made known. The uncertain status of his lawyers has not precluded an open break, but it is understood that in the absence of definite advice from the Thaws except to "do their best" they are marking time and listening patiently to Thaw's rambling advice.

After his admission of last night that he was the chauffeur that drove Thaw from Matteawan, "gentleman Roger" Thompson kept his mouth closed today. Thaw, however, promptly issued a statement that he had retained a counsel to defend him, and that he regarded the chauffeur as a British subject—a victim of false arrest. As a matter of fact Thompson is said to be the son of a Toronto policeman. For years, however, he has lived in New York.

Rumors of a possible attempt to "rescue" Harry Thaw from the prison here still alarmed the prison authorities today and caused Lomer Gouin, premier of the province, to telegraph to the American ambassador in Canada asking that officials give his opinion as to whether the ordinary staff at the prison was protection enough against a raid.

The sheriff telegraphed the premier that he had the case on his mind, although he thought armed guards would be useful to escort the prisoner to court.

The sheriff pointed out that the display of unusual precautions against Thaw might only lead to the suggestion that he was a dangerous man, and that he was not a prisoner, but a man of honor.

Harry K. Thaw's group of Canadian lawyers, nearly all of whom were retained by telegraph, found themselves today confronting three questions. First, who was in charge of the case? Second, how was Thaw to be released from prison? Third, with whom were they to consult pending Thaw's arraignment in the superior court on Wednesday next in the writ of habeas corpus?

There are seven "over ourselves," said one of the lawyers. Eight men could not handle one man's case without a definite agreement as to who is the boss. Thaw would like to conduct his own defense, but because of telegrams from his relatives he has no feel justified in acceding to his demands. On the other hand there is no representative of the family here on whom he can rely. So far as we know Thaw is released on his present commitment when arraigned next Wednesday and then turned over to the immigration authorities. They will deport him to Vermont, where he has been led to believe, or to New Hampshire.

Thaw, when asked this morning if his counsel did not know who was among them, grinned and replied: "I understand we have hired the best men in the Dominion. It's up to them."

Thaw will probably never have a hearing on the habeas corpus writ procured by his counsel, according to the statement of one of them today. The date for this hearing has been set for next Wednesday, but the entire habeas corpus proceedings will be dropped before then if the latest plan is carried out.

The plan is to have the writ withdrawn and permit Thaw to face a trial on the defective charge on which he was committed to jail by a justice at Coaticook.

Albany, Aug. 23.—William Travers Jerome, appointed a special deputy attorney general to look after the Thaw extradition case, has been instructed to proceed at once to Canada in this connection. He will reach Sherbrooke tomorrow. This announcement came today from the office of the attorney general.

WOMEN HAVE NOVEL GRIEVANCE AGAINST INSURANCE SCHEME

Those of British Isles Insist That Mothers and Not Fathers Shall Collect Birth Bounty.

London, Aug. 23.—The women of the British Islands have a new and novel grievance. It is incidental to the workings of the Lloyd George insurance scheme which, among other things, gives thirty shillings to an insured woman, on childbirth. Now the question is shall the woman or her husband collect this money? About the time the law was to go into effect this perennial government plaything the country with posters of the size and general appearance of those the circus advance agents paste upon farmers' barns, bearing a picture of a crowd of cheerful looking women all holding up babies in their arms. The purpose was to call attention to this maternity benefit of £7.50.

The husbands of the mothers now claim that the money should be handed to them, and thus far they have been prompt in collecting it whenever a household has been blessed with an offspring. Many of them have been equally prompt about dishonoring the money, however, and the trouble. One man is said to have used this windfall to elope with another woman, and cases of the head of the family treating himself to a spree have not been infrequent.

Questions have been asked in the house of commons with the object of having a rule adopted by which this maternity benefit will be paid only to the mother, and some of the women's societies have taken up the matter and doubtless they will gain their point.

HUERTA WILL SEND ENVOY TO WILSON

HUERTA MAY RECONSIDER THE HASTY WORDS IN REJECTION OF AMERICAN PROPOSALS.

MESSAGE ON TUESDAY

United States Government Will Not Yield Position of Eliminating Huerta as Ruler.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Developments in the Mexican situation were moving swiftly today toward a point which officials expected to determine whether President Wilson would read his special message to congress Tuesday. Direct advice from Mexico city that provisional President Huerta might wish to reconsider his rejection of the American proposals before President Wilson takes the negotiations bare before the world have changed the situation and today the president's plans were contingent upon the moves of the next few hours.

President Wilson interrupted work on his message today to get a few hours' recreation on the golf links. Suggestions have been made to the Washington government since the exchange of such signals, but the urgency on the part of Huerta officials to delay the issue. The published report in Mexico City that Emilio Rabasa would be sent to Washington by Huerta for a confidential mission is credited here to the extent that it is known that Huerta has under consideration a plan to send an envoy to the United States to talk unofficially with President Wilson just as Mr. Lind did with Huerta. It is believed however that Frederico Gamboa, minister of foreign relations would be the man chosen by Huerta for the mission if such is intended.

When a suggestion would meet the approval of the United States is not known as yet, but as evidence of a desire to reconsider the first rejection of the American proposals, the news is regarded as of much significance. That the American government, however, will not yield from its position that Huerta must be eliminated as a factor in the situation is likely to be made plain to the Mexican City and before President Wilson's mission would constitute a supplementary procedure to bring about such an understanding.

In many quarters, however, the sending of an envoy to talk with President Wilson is regarded as an effort to delay the plans of the American government. Foreign governments some of which have recognized the Huerta government of Mexico, which the envoys pressure upon it to yield to the demands of the U. S. that developments may cause Pres. Wilson to defer the reading of his message to Congress on Tuesday. Administration officials took that view today. Dispatches from John Lind described more conciliatory disposition on the part of the Huerta officials as a result of the senate debate here Thursday. President Wilson almost unanimously was endorsed in his efforts to bring about peace. Pres. Wilson's insistence upon the original proposals has had the effect of demonstrating to Mexico the futility of sending an envoy, and Emilio Rabasa, or Frederico Gamboa, to discuss the situation with Pres. Wilson. The United States had information of Huerta's plan which the American note his mission would be fruitless. No envoy is now expected, but the results of foreign pressure are being watched with the few days. Pres. Wilson meanwhile practically completed his message to Congress and read it over to Secretary Bryan late today.

GINK AND DINK—

THIS IS A GOOD ONE ON PETE

Sports Snap-Shots

Another outfielder of the American Association is about to graduate into the major leagues. His name is Clarence Walker, and he's a centerfielder for the Kansas City club. It is said that he will bring a bigger price than was paid for Larry Chappel when Milwaukee got $18,000 for him from Chicago. Walker is fast as a streak, can cover twice as much territory as the average player and is a sun fielder. The principal trouble with him is that he does not slide in running bases. This weakness, however, can be easily overcome.

On the list of fighters who have been kept from getting a chance at a championship through hard luck, the name of Freddie Welsh leads all the rest. Here's Freddie, a real top-notch for the last eight or nine years, who never had an opportunity to try for the title in his division. Twice he has been matched with the champion. Once was when he was booked to meet Ad Wolgast at Los Angeles, Thanksgiving Day, 1912. But 24 hours before the battle Ad was seized with appendicitis and Willie Ritchie was substituted. Welsh won handily enough, but beating Ritchie in those days wasn't equivalent to being called the best in the division. Now when it means so much to get a chance at Ritchie, and when a sore-rough Welsh is set for labor day at Vancouver, Welsh sprains his ankle and has to call off the bout. Ritchie has promised, however, to stay over several days in Vancouver, so possibly Freddie will get his chance yet. Let's hope he does.

The approach of the football season sees Wisconsin an apparent easy winner of the western conference championship. Juneau, who handled the Badgers last year and made them western champions will be back with a good bunch of veterans. Above good coaches and good material, the Wisconsin schedule will help the men. It is intelligently arranged, the squad getting easy contests before the conference games. Only two contests away from the title will be with Purdue, October 18, and with Chicago, November 22. The only other tough game will be with Minnesota, November 1, giving ample time between these contests to put the eleven in shape.

Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics is not only a wise manager, but he is one of the luckiest in the business. When he needs another good player, all he has to do is to reach out into the bushes with his eyes shut and grab what he wants. Take Wallie Schang's case as example. This youth, who is one of the most promising catchers in the league, cost the Athletics very little. Lucky Mack got him by the dirt route, and now wouldn't part with him for four times his cost. Schang is a wonderful thrower, fast on bases, a timely batter, and that's why he has supplanted Ira Thomas. Schang is barely out of his teens, but he acts like a player who has been in big company for a number of years.

Local White Sox to Cross Bats With Beloit Athletics—Sox Out for Revenge.

At Yost's Park Sunday afternoon the Janesville White Sox are to clash for supremacy with the Beloit Athletics and the contest promises to be hotly waged as the Sox are out to give the Beloiters a trimming. The Athletics defeated the Sox by a fourteen to ten score after the Janesville team had showed the poorest playing of its career.

NEW RECORDS MAKE RED LETTER DAY IN BASEBALL HISTORY

Twenty-One Scoreless Innings Pitched by William Whitaker—New Campaign is Planned.

New York, Aug. 25.—A sequence of unusual events and performances marked Tuesday, August 12, as a red letter day in baseball history. William Whitaker of the Kokuk Central Association team pitched twenty-one consecutive scoreless innings in a game between the Watford and Kokuk teams. But five hits were made off Whitaker and his team won both games by a 1 to 0 score. The first game went nine innings and the second twelve. In major league baseball, Reubach of the Chicago Cubs, on September 26, 1908, pitched a double-header consisting of two nine-inning games against Brooklyn, winning both without giving the Superbas a run. During the same year Walter Johnson of the Washington Club shut out the New York Americans on September 4, 5 and 7, pitched twenty-seven consecutive innings without allowing a run.

While Whitaker was performing at Kokuk, William Powers of the New London Club of the Eastern Association, was pitching a double-header of eighteen innings in which he shut out the New Haven team without a run and allowed but eight hits. At the same hour the Toronto and Jersey City clubs of the International League were playing a twenty-inning scoreless tie game in which Pitcher Hearne of the Toronto club, twirled the full distance, allowing but six hits. Minor league history shows this twenty-inning scoreless game was duplicated by the Olean and Fort Worth clubs of the Texas League on July 17, 1906, when, as in the case of Jersey City and Toronto, the game was called on account of darkness after the twentieth inning.

The Chronicle of the day's unusual baseball features do not end with these facts. August 12 marked the seventeenth anniversary of Napoleon Lejole's entry into big league baseball. It was also Christy Mathewson's thirty-third birthday and he celebrated by being a material factor in the Giants' victory over the Brooklyn club in an eleven-inning game. The National Baseball Commission took advantage of the occasion to get in the limelight with a ruling to the effect that a baseball player who owed another money in the form of a personal debt could be suspended from organized baseball until such time as he paid the debt.

Although a day late, Pitcher Hedde with the Richmond club of the Virginia league, performed a peculiar feat on August 12, when he of fended in both games of a double-header against Petersburg, allowing the hit, three bases on balls and no runs. Hedgepath, who is slated for the Washington Americans, was opposed in the first game by Pitcher Ayers, who until defeated by Hedde had a record of thirteen straight victories. Ayers was also joined by Washington club this day.

Important Golf Tournaments. With English golfers in all three national championship tournaments this autumn the play for amateur, open and women's titles takes on added interest. According to the latest reports Abe Mitchell will compete for the amateur and open; Miss Muriel Dodd, present women champion of Great Britain, and Miss Renscroft, 1912 champion, in the women's title tourney; Harry Vardon, Wilfred Reid and Edward Ray in the open. There is early evidence that these title-seeking golfers, joined by the French trio, will attract unusual attention to the competitions at Garden City, Brookline and Wilmington. Large entry lists are predicted for both the amateur and open tournaments, September 1-6, will be devoted to the amateur tournament. A record entry is also expected for the open competition and the play will in all probability require four instead of two days as originally planned. It is believed that many of the United States professionals will avail themselves of the opportunity to enter when the idea of watching the famous foreign players in action, rather than the hope of securing a place in the final rounds.

Magnates Plan New Campaign. Much the finish of the 1913 pennant races in sight the magnates of the big league clubs are already planning for another year's campaign. The efforts to strengthen various teams in both the National and American leagues goes on apace, accompanied by the usual reports of trades, shake-ups and managerial changes. Dan Rumor can always find ready listeners in the baseball world and almost every club expects the flag winning combinations come in for a share or her attention. Among those managers who are reported to find the balancing of the field difficult are the White Sox, and Evers of the Chicago Nationals; Calahan of the Chicago White Sox; Carrigan of the Boston Red Sox; Dahlgren of the Brooklyn Nationals; Stall of the St. Louis Browns, and Tucker of the Cincinnati Club.

In several cases successors for the present managers have been tentatively named by underground gossip. Presahan is said to be in line for Evers' position; Stahl named for Calahan's place and George McBride slated to fill Carrigan's shoes. Lord and Chase are also said to be willing to help Connolly in the task of unifying the White Sox. Apparently John McGraw and Connie Mack are the only managers who appear to be sure of their positions at this time, if rumors are to be believed.

Cricket Club to Tour. An interesting addition to the international contests of the year should develop in the coming American tour of the famous Incoigniti Cricket Club of London. This organization of amateur cricketers holds a unique position in the cricket circles of England. Composed exclusively of sensation players the club was formed in 1861 with a membership originally fixed at 100, raised to 150 in 1869, increased to 175 in 1871, and now limited to 200 members. There is a large waiting list of applicants for membership for the Incoigniti Club is a social as well as cricket club. The members do not play for gate money, and are paying their own expenses during the tour of the United States and Canada.

The thirteen players who compose the team are all cricketers of an proved ability, being members of either the leading school, university or county club elevens. Cambridge and Oxford universities are both well represented as are Eton, Harrow and the second twelve in major league baseball. Among the wickets are: Colonel C. E. Greenway, B. P. Dobson, E. J. Metcalfe, Captain W. G. M. Sarel, C. L. Tudor, G. V. Campbell, C. E. Hefield, Hon. H. H. H. Mitholland, Michael Falcon, B. C. Von B. Yelle, G. R. R. Colman, D. M. P. Witcombe, Phillip Collins.

The schedule as arranged at present calls for five matches, four to be played in the east and one in Canada. The dates are as follows: September 5-6-8, Gentlemen of Philadelphia at Haverford, Pa.; September 9-10, New York Veterans at Livingston, N. Y.; September 12-13-15, Gentlemen of Philadelphia at Mauburn, Pa.; September 17-18, Toronto Zinzans at Toronto, Ont.; September 20-22-23, Gentlemen of Philadelphia at St. Martins, Pa.

DEKALB BUYS FIRE TRUCK LIKE THAT OF JAMESVILLE

Chief of the fire department H. C. Klein received a letter this morning from DeKalb expressing the thanks of the members of the party that visited this city for the excellent demonstration of the Seagrave motor fire truck and other contrivances extended to them by Chief Klein and his men. It evidently proved a clincher for DeKalb has decided to buy a truck of the same kind after having closed a contract for a different machine. Before visiting Jamesville the party was given demonstrations of fire trucks in Princeton, Aurora, and other cities.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

A writer for the Christian Herald says:

"We have probably all thought at times what a dreadful calamity it would be to become blind. Yet do we realize that most of us live in a kind of voluntary blindness that may grow to be sadder than actual loss of eyesight?"

"This sounds like rather extravagant language, but let us consider it. Have you never noticed that when a great happiness comes to you the whole world looks different? The leaves are a richer green, the sky a deeper blue; the flowers have a new glory. What has happened? All these things were the same yesterday. But yesterday you were partially blind. The new happiness has made you see them as they are."

A poet has two things to do. He must see; he must make others see. Many a man who cannot write poetry is nevertheless essentially a poet. He has the poet's soul, the poet's vision. He is a seer. A poet who can write comes along and expresses what both feel. But a man who does not see with this kind of vision, can not be a poet. He may write verses, but he is not a poet. Milton would not have exchanged his blindness of eye for blindness of soul. He would rather have lived in blindness than to lose the power to understand life and truth."

The loss of physical vision is considered one of the greatest calamities that can possibly befall us, and yet this is only one species of blindness. It is an old saying that there are none so blind as those who won't see, and the class of people thus afflicted is much larger than the class deprived of the sense of vision. In fact this weakness, in one form or another, is generally shared by the human family.

If you have ever associated with blind people you have discovered that they talk about "seeing things" just the same as other people.

In talking with a blind man, who is an undertaker in a nearby town, he said, the other day: "I have to be eyes for the whole family. The children lose their clothes, and mislay their playthings and they always come to me to help them out."

A young man was killed by lightning, in a recent storm at Delavan lake, and the blind undertaker had charge of the funeral. Every little detail of the freaks of the electric current was carefully noted, and he talked about the case as intelligently as any man could.

Loss of natural vision quickens the sensibilities and renders the senses of touch and hearing very acute. Many blind people see more with their ears and fingers—to say nothing about the mind, which is always alert—than others do who are blessed with all their senses.

What the blind need more than sympathy is an opportunity to work out an independent livelihood, and this many of them do, in spite of their handicap.

Some of the best piano-tuners in the state are graduates of the state school for the blind, and the man at the head of the tuning department in one of the Rockford factories, has never enjoyed the sense of vision.

Blind people are average people, in point of intelligence, and while many avenues are closed to them, they make the most of their opportunities, and many of them are self-supporting.

The great rank and file of humanity enter upon the duties of active life with but a limited knowledge of text books, and yet we are a nation of educated people, because we discovered long ago that the great university of life is rich in opportunities, and that the knowledge acquired may be applied in practical ways.

The boy who enters a railway cab as a fireman, expects some day to be an engineer, and the ambition cheers him with hope, through the long days and nights of toil and grime, as a coal-heaver.

Not a very pleasant school, and yet the primary department, where the great army of railway engine men enroll their names as beginners, to graduate later full-fledged, and ready for responsibility.

These conditions prevail throughout the world of industry, and it is gratifying to know that in this great university, a very large majority of the pupils graduate with honor.

A want advertisement is now running in the New York dailies for girls who have just arrived from the old world. The wage offered to beginners is five dollars per week, with the statement that from eight to fourteen dollars can be earned, as soon as they become expert operators.

The employing industry is one of the oldest in this country. It employs a great army of girls and women who have been expertly educated to do one thing well, and that is about all any one mind can grasp and conquer, with any sort of a diploma back of it.

People acquire knowledge in this practical school, through the channels of observation, to become good operators. You can talk to some people until you are black in the face, and be embarrassed by the vacant stare which greets your message.

Their ears may be as good as their eyes, and still the model which you are attempting to explain, remains a riddle, for the mind is so dense or so indifferent, that the light of knowledge fails to penetrate.

During the Spanish-American war every warship which sailed from our ports discovered before many days out, that, hid away among the cargo, was from one to half a dozen Japs. They were willing to work, and were allowed to join the crew, but six months later they disappeared and the navy yards of Japan soon had in their possession a detailed description of our fighting ships, with a complete set of blue-prints, and all because the spies sent out were good observers.

The boy who can tell you the names of the birds and trees, is a close observer of nature. The golden sunset impresses him as one of God's great panoramas. He has an eye for the beautiful.

Some of us are so far-sighted that we never see the things close at hand. Our range of vision takes in the future, and we plan for the pleasures that will come to us when ambitions are realized, forgetful of the fact that today is the only day we are certain of.

The yellow streak which runs through human nature, and which makes the yellow journal so much in demand, is all eyes and ears for the sensational and depraved. It makes of Thaw, a hero, and revels in gossip and scandal.

It is so much easier to see the bad than the good in humanity, that we exalt the one and ignore the other, until it is easy to believe that the world is all bad.

What we need as a people today, is men and women with clear mental and moral vision, inspired with kindly sympathy. The good about us lies close to the surface, ready to respond to a word of recognition.

EXPOSURE

Fat.

When any fellow's fat I want to tell you that He gets much good advice That's free and without price. And every friend he knows Speaks of his adipose

In terms that are sarcastic And mentions cures most drastic. They tell him he will croak; That he's no joke.

If he does not get wise And go and exercise, He starts in right away But when he skips a day He finds that he weighs more Than ever he did before.

He frazzles in the heat; His misery's complete. When good old-fashioned summer Puts him right on the hummer

Polks look at him askew And don't grant him a chance To live more than a year. And then they shed a tear, and say: "Goodbye, dear one, You're too fat by a ton."

But still in spite of that The people who are fat Live on.

Signs of the Times.

Any country wishing to send vessels through the Panama canal will have to "See America first."

It seems as though the plate glass insurance companies in England would be made enough by this time to snuff out the suffrage movement, even of the police can't.

Friend husband was just letting him on the train for her summer vacation and was mentally surging on the time he was going to have in town while she was away. "Aren't you going to take some fiction with you to read while you are away?" he asked. "Oh, no," she replied, "I will have your weekly letters to read, you know."

An up-to-date paper announces: "Premier performance of Romeo and Juliet by William Shakespeare."

The only drawback of this premiere performance is that the author will probably not be able to be present.

One way to make a sleeping porch comfortable in summer is to hire a carpenter and have it covered and lathed and plastered just like the rest of the house. If you can't run the furnace pipes up to the sleeping room you can heat it with a suash oil stove.

Suspenders.

Another great national institution is threatened by the faddists who can never let well enough alone. Tailoring experts, having heeded the call of the faddists, have frowned upon the suspender and say that within a very short time it will be obsolete.

This seems to be striking a blow at the very essence of freedom and liberty for which this great country is more or less noted throughout the world. By the aid of suspenders this country has accomplished a great deal. All the great buildings, all the immense bridges and all the public works have been erected by the aid of suspenders. Without the suspenders what could they have accomplished? Echo answers: "What?"

If those men had gone about holding their clothing on with one hand and with but one other hand with which to work, would this country be where it is today? Hardly.

Nothing gives a working man more confidence and more power to do great things than a good pair of suspenders. Suspenders have been the main support of this nation for many, many years. Most men have to work with both hands. How could the dauntless fireman have courage to run up a ladder and rescue the cheerless from a burning building unless he wore reliable suspenders?

As usual the reformers offer no substitute. They do not suggest whether the coming race of men shall fasten their clothing on with nails, library paste or clips. They simply seek to tear down a great national institution without putting anything in its place.

According to Uncle Abner.

The fellow who says he kin stop drinking any time he wants to never wants to.

In a few years there will be enough different brands of breakfast food so that every fellow kin have one brand for himself.

The only trouble with the nicotine absorbent pipes is that they don't absorb the nicotine.

I never saw a newspaper man who wasn't loyal to his paper. If he wasn't loyal he want a newspaper man, that's all.

It takes a lot more nerve, confidence and optimism to be an employer than to be an employee.

You never have to lie awake nights thinking up schemes to get even with a crook. Let him alone and he will get even with himself.

It is believed that the two-passenger porch swing has done more to promote matrimony in this country than any other piece of machinery that has ever been invented.

Hanks Tamms says he hopes he will get his last winter's coal paid for by Oct. 1st, so he can stand 'em off for some more.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

A GLIMPSE OF THE REAL.

In the early morning, after the death of President McKinley had been flashed around the world, a newspaper man, weary with the labor of the night, took his way homeward. Since evening the bulletins had indicated the certain end. An entire nation was shocked and stunned, and in every capital of the world were expressions of sympathy and grief. Each click of the telegraph instruments was articulated with sorrow, while underneath this note was one of indignation at the dastardly agent of murder who had conceived the deed. Here was a new force that was a portent, and men looked at the future with foreboding. One reporter had remarked, "If there is a God he has left this world to be ruled by chance and chaos."

Out of this turmoil the newspaper man went into the night. The hour was approaching the dawn, and there was silence over the city. The only sounds heard were the occasional shrill crow of a cock, the distant bark of a dog and a solitary hoof beat echoing from some neighboring street. Men might be torn by grief and frenzy, but nature was unmoved. The ruler of a populous nation had fallen, but through all the excitement and change here were stability and peace. The great blocks of brick and mortar loomed the same as on yesterday. The distant mountains stood as they had stood for centuries.

Overhead the stars shone with an unvoiced brightness. Low to the west was Orion, to the north lay the polar star and the bear, to the east was a brilliant planet, yellowing in the dawn, and arching across the zenith was the Milky way, strewn like dust with the suns. All the numberless constellations stood exactly as they had stood at the birth of the first man.

There were worlds on worlds, systems on systems, till the mind was bewildered at their contemplation. The infinite spaces were populous with orbs. There were stars so distant that the light of the troubled earth dwindled to a point and disappeared trillions of miles short of them. Around these suns were innumerable other planets, peopled by other races, on which were enacted other tragedies.

On through the infinite silence swung the worlds, the suns and the systems, in perfect order and harmony. Outward to the limits of vision and still outward through unthinkable distances marched the glittering companies, regiments and armies of worlds.

Before this sublime spectacle the worries of the world dwindled, its fevers grew cool and the complaints of the human fell silent. The questioning of God became the babble of a child who does not understand. The talk of chaos was the discordant squeak of a mouse among the swelling harmony of the spheres.

The newspaper man had caught a glimpse of the real. Henceforth he decided that in some sort he would attempt to give the vision voice. He knew no better avenue than through his accustomed work, for the modern newspaper is supposed to stand, above all else, for real things.

CHARGE OF CRUELTY

NOT WELL FOUNDED

Superintendent Zecariah Clayton of Wisconsin Humane Society Declares Assistant Chief Cornelius Murphy are not well founded and that there is no credible evidence to show that he did not take all reasonable exertions to remove the Metzinger horse from the burning barn. The conclusion reached by Zecariah Clayton, superintendent of the Wisconsin Humane society, who yesterday made an investigation of a complaint made to him by A. G. Metzinger, several persons at the fire were questioned closely by Mr. Clayton. Among these were H. A. Grifley, engineer at the waterworks; Charles Knudson, William Wobig and James Arnold. The substance of the testimony shows that the horse was down when Chief Murphy was directed by his superior to go into the barn and see what could be done. William Wobig stated that he was one of the first to arrive at the fire. Courtney slightly preceded him. Wobig ran into the barn, untied one horse, and led it out. When he reached the street, he was surprised to find that Courtney had not gone into the barn and led out the other horse. He went back to the door again but the flames and smoke were so menacing that he dared not take the chance. If the horse had been his own he might possibly have attempted a rescue, but he considered that his first duties were to his wife and children. Dr. Perschbacher, local officer of the Humane Society, assisted Mr. Clayton in securing his evidence. The latter said that a fireman could not be expected to kill a horse beyond rescue, even if he carried a gun, but should notify an officer of the Humane Society as soon as possible as such officers have the proper authority.

MOTURING TOURISTS

IN DESPERADO ACT

One of Two Young Men From St. Paul Shows Farmers Huge Revolver When Cattle Block Road.

Desperado tactics were resorted to by two young men from St. Paul on the road between Beloit and this city yesterday afternoon when the progress of their automobile was blocked by a drove of cattle. The two men in charge of the cattle, sons of Webb Huginn, whose farm is but a short distance south of this city, did not get them out of the road with sufficient despatch whereupon some cynical remarks were made by the motorists. The cattle-drivers returned the courtesy. Finally one of the young men in the car produced a revolver with a barrel about a foot long and compelled the farmers at its point to obey their orders, rub their noses in the dust, and otherwise humiliate themselves. Then they continued their journey.

The automobile of the world-be-desperadoes was bound toward Janesville and when they arrived they found a patrolman Cower waiting for them, for information of their conduct had been telephoned to the police by Mr. Huginn. Both were taken to the police station to await his arrival. Mr. Huginn did not want to file a formal complaint against the young men but contented himself with an apology. They were then released.

G. L. C. Anderson was the name given the police by the young man who pointed the revolver at the farmers. At first he stated that all he had

NEW COMPLICATIONS HAVE ARISEN IN REASSESSMENT CHARGES AGAINST CITY

THIS TIME STATE WITHHOLDS COUNTY'S SHARE OF AUTO-MOBILE TAX BECAUSE CITY HAS NOT PAID.

COURT ACTION SHORTLY

Attorney General Gave Opinion Which Brought This Last Difficulty About—Interesting Point of Law.

That the city of Janesville and the state of Wisconsin may be involved in a lawsuit in which Rock County may also be an interested third party, is considered probably today as the result of recent developments in regard to the payment of the charge for the reassessment of property in this city which was included in the state apportionment against Rock County last year as a special item against the city of Janesville.

City Attorney W. H. Dougherty stated today that it was his intention to take the matter up in the near future with the attorney general and that the fact would doubtless be presented and the merits of the case argued before Judge George Grimm in the circuit court before the matter is finally disposed of.

The cost of reassessing property in this city in 1911 amounted to $2,851.55. The expense was incurred by the state tax commission on a complaint brought by H. L. Maxwell who asked for new valuations on the grounds that inequalities existed under the figures then on the assessment books. The expense was done at a considerable expense, it became a matter of public record, it was the intention of the state to saddle upon the city in the nature of a special charge.

At that time the city refused payment to the county treasurer who, in making his returns to the state treasurer, filed an affidavit to the effect that the city of Janesville refused to pay the reassessment item. Since that time the matter has remained unsettled with little or no agitation on the part of any of the parties interested.

County Treasurer F. P. Livermore on Friday received a letter from State Treasurer Henry Johnson in which he stated that the amount of the automobile license money due to Rock County was $5,013.70. He explained, however, that the state was sending a draft for only $2,418 for the reason that the state had deducted the amount of the reassessment cost plus accrued interest at ten per cent, the amount of $2,851.55, and the corresponding enclosed indicates that this item was carried to the credit of the city of Janesville by the secretary of the state as a special charge against the city of Janesville for costs incurred by the state tax commission and paid out of the state treasury on proceedings had by said tax commission for the purpose of reviewing the assessment of the said city of Janesville, the excuse on the part of the county treasurer for not returning said item being that the city of Janesville refused to levy the tax or to pay the same to the county treasurer.

Section 1087-55 provides that the costs and expenses incurred by the tax commission in such reassessment proceedings shall be paid out of the state treasury and "be a special charge upon such district to be certified to and collected from such district in the manner that other indebtedness of cities, towns and villages to the state are certified and collected."

Section 1087-60 provides that the return of state taxes shall be made by the county clerk in each year to the county clerk of each county the amount of such taxes apportioned to and levied upon his county, and all other special charges which he is required by law to make in any year to any such county, to be collected with the state tax.

Section 1087-61 of the Wisconsin Statutes provides that when any county shall fail to pay to the state treasurer the whole or any part of the state tax apportioned to and levied upon such county as required by law, then such county shall be liable to the state treasurer in addition to the amount so due and unpaid, interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from the time such tax was due and until it is paid, and this sum shall be added to the amount apportioned to such county for the succeeding year.

used for repair improvements on state and county aid roads in the various townships. Consequently every section of the county is brought into the case.

NAMES F. C. GRANT TO FIRE COMMISSION

Appointment Was Ratified by Council at Its Meeting This Morning—Murphy Hearing Soon.

Appointment of Francis C. Grant to the Fire and Police Commission to succeed Harry Nowlan, resigned, was announced by Mayor Fathers to the city council at its meeting late this morning. The appointment was promptly confirmed. Mr. Grant is regarded by the mayor as especially well equipped for the position because of his legal training and knowledge of procedure. He is now serving the county as court reporter and the city as a member of the school board. In politics he is a democrat.

A meeting of the board of fire and police commissioners will be held late next week for the purpose of electing a president and vice president. Mr. Grant is expected to be elected. The board also will give a hearing to the charges filed against Assistant Chief of the Fire Department Cornelius Murphy, by A. J. Metzinger.

Next Wednesday morning, Mr. Murphy's counsel, Thomas S. Nolan, could not be in the city at that time. Little other business came before the board. The communication of Chief Klein calling attention to violations of the building ordinances was placed on file, as was also the report of the Board of Public Works on the improvement of Milwaukee and Prospect streets.

COST OF EDUCATION RIVALS HIGH LIVING

One Rural School District in Rock County Where School Was Maintained at an Exorbitant Expense.

One school district in Rock county holds the record for liberality in educating its children. It cost $346.60 to educate the year 1912-1913 to conduct the school at district No. 7, town of Avon, the attendance at which totaled but two, both little girls, one ten and the other twelve years of age. The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. A. Jones, clerk and director of the school board respectively. This is the highest cost for rural education on record in the county according to Superintendent O. D. Antisdal who gives $120 as the average cost per student in the average rural school under his supervision.

On the advice of Mr. Antisdal it was voted to close the school this year and send the two children to another district, the nearest being district No. 2 some three miles away. In a letter to the county superintendent the clerk of the board complains of the inaccessibility of the other school on account of the fact that Sugar river has to be crossed and the road is impassable on account of high water. Mr. Antisdal has advised that it could be more economical and satisfactory to have the school in the adjacent district even if the children had to remain away from school for several weeks on account of the weather and condition of the roads.

The school building which has been closed is one of the poorest in the county, being in a poor state of repair. Last year the district paid the teacher $30 a month.

Has Edward Owen, who is under arrest at Elgin, on complaint of William McGavock of Beloit, whose daughter he married in Rockford Thursday evening, a wife living in Janesville from whom he is not divorced? This is the question that is bothering the Elgin authorities. TRAFFIC DIVISION

ON BRIDGE NEEDED

Superintendent Shore Says Congestion on Foot Bridges Can Not Be Avoided Otherwise.

Division of traffic between the temporary foot-bridges, the use of one by west bound pedestrians, and the other by east bound pedestrians, will be necessary to avoid congestion at the Superintendent Shore of the Gould Construction Company this morning. The north foot-bridge was opened to travel at about four o'clock yesterday afternoon but the south bridge will be closed at seven o'clock Monday morning and not be opened until evening for the removal of the cement walk in front of the Sutherland building occupied by the Golden Eagle and F. J. Bailey and Son stores. This has to be taken out as it extends over space to be occupied by the new bridge. It will be replaced by a temporary wooden walk which however can not be more than two and a half feet wide. This will make it almost impossible for people to pass at this point and is the strongest argument for a division of travel. But the south bridge will have to be closed at times during the construction of the permanent bridge, but both will never be closed at the same time.

Two minor accidents have occurred this far in the work of bridge building. Late yesterday afternoon, F. M. Belknap, a thirty year old man, thirty years of age had the middle finger of his left hand crushed in the cogs of the derrick mechanism. Dr. F. B. Welch was called and after giving the injured finger a temporary dressing had his patient removed to the Hospital. There it was found necessary to amputate down to the first joint. Another finger was badly bruised. Several days ago another employee had a foot bruised and slightly crushed when a heavy cross beam fell upon it. The Gould Construction Company carries liability insurance and makes detailed reports of all accidents to their workmen and other employees.

TEN THOUSAND AT EVANSVILLE TODAY

Janesville Day Proves to Be Banner Day—Janesville Cardinals Defeated by Stoughton, 7 to 2.

Janesville day at the Evansville fair brought out the banner attendance of the week and it is estimated that ten thousand people crowded in to the fair grounds to view the day's events. Over three hundred Janesville people went to Evansville this morning on the special train over the Northwestern road leaving Janesville at nine o'clock and two hundred went on the noon train. The Moose band of Janesville was the official band of the day and did themselves credit.

This morning the Janesville Cardinals crossed bat with the crack Stoughton nine, who defeated the Footville White Sox yesterday by a lone tally. The Cardinals fought a lucky battle but a slugfest in the fourth inning and Stoughton proved their downfall and the Stoughton nine won by a seven to two score.

"Cuddy" Butters was on the mound for the Cards, but his terrific speed and bender's only held the Stoughton sluggers in check during a few innings of the game. The Cards gained an early lead over their opponents and scored a tally in the first. Stoughton pushed two across in the fourth by some hard clouting and when Janesville tied up in the sixth the Stoughton warriors cinched the game with five runs. Gharibay of Beloit was the battery mate of Butters and showed their opponents some of the finer arts of catching. Hall of Janesville was the backstop for Stoughton.

At one o'clock the live stock parade was held and a better exhibit is seldom seen. The track was in the fastest possible condition and exciting heats from the big field of entries at the races kept the spectators on edge.

The free-for-all Rob Roy took the first heat in driving flush from Spill in 2:11 1/2, which broke the track record of 2:13. Addition was third, Golden Rod fourth, and Denver fifth.

Spill and Addition second and third, time 2:12 1/2.

In the 2:18 trot the first heat went to Ernest Axtell, Six Cylinder Penn in 2:18 1/2, time 2:14.

In the second and third heats of the 2:16 trot Ernest Axtell romped away with the money taking first, Hokoka Penn third, and six cylinder Penn fourth.

In the 2:18 trot, Agnes K. won the first heat, Star second, Chance third, time 2:14. There were nine starters.

In the 2:18 pace Agnes K. led the second heat with Chance and Star third, time 2:16.

There were five fast races at the fair yesterday. Mark Haine took the 2:25 pace in three straight heats against a last field. Ethel McKee won the 2:30 trot in line style, defeating the trick which she performed at Janesville. Fred Harding came to the front in the 2:29 trot. Count Marque took the three year old pace and Logan took the 2:13 pace.

REPORTS DISCOVERY OF NEW GOLD FIELD

Janesville Man Receives Word From Nephew of Rich Deposits in Alaska.

F. C. Wilson, employed by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road as a switchman, has received interesting news from his nephew Henry P. Watson, who is employed by the government in Alaska, relative to a rich placer discovery that has been made.

Mr. Watson was one of the first to visit the field and in an interview in a Seattle paper had the following to say of the new gold field:

"The rush is on again for the gold fields in Alaska," said Henry P. Watson, of Seattle, Washington, at the Hotel Emerson yesterday. "It is reported that gold has been found in a new territory, and a large number of miners and prospectors are leaving the Pacific coast for the new gold fields. It is said two men took out 200 ounces of gold in four days, and that dirt is being found on other creeks running 32 to the pan. The gold is said to have been found on the Shushanna river, near the head of the White river, about 30 miles west of the international boundary between the Yukon (the Yukon and Alaska). It is thought that the rush for the new gold fields will nearly be as great as when gold was first discovered in Alaska. There is no direct route to the new field, but most of the journey can be made by steamer."

Busiest Man.

After thinking it over carefully, we have decided that probably the busiest man in the world is the man on a Pullman who is engaged in trying to keep the porter from putting his hat box with the baggage of every lady who gets off the train.

Mothers! Have Your Children Worms?

Are they feverish, restless, nervous, irritable, dizzy or constipated? Do they continually pick their nose or grind their teeth? Have they cramping pains, irregular and ravenous appetite? These are all signs of worms. Worms not only cause your child suffering, but stunt its mind and growth. Give "Kickapoo Worm Killer" at once. It kills and removes the worms, improves your child's appetite, regulates stomach, liver and bowels. The symptoms disappear and your child is made happy and healthy, as nature intended. BUSINESS EDUCATION A NECESSITY

Why a Business Training?

The reason ambitious young people should take a business training is that they may become thoroughly familiar with up-to-date business methods and the laws controlling them. This is the quickest and most sure way to a livelihood. The professions are much overcrowded and therefore returns proportionately low. Learning how to transact business will secure you a good situation and later when you run a business of your own, you will know how to make a success of it. Every young person needs this training.

Where to Get It

The training should be secured where the following advantages are found—First, a school of known reputation for educational, financial and moral soundness. Second, a school thoroughly equipped with modern appliances, having a good faculty of experienced teachers and maintain a high course of study. Third, where the attendance is of such a class as to be congenial and uplifting. Fourth, where the school's courses are standard and their work is accredited. Fifth, where the student is sure of a position upon graduation. We have all of these. That is

Why You Should Attend the Janesville Business College

This is an accredited school. We are a member of the National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools, and the Wisconsin Commercial Educators' Association. Our work is vouched for by the officers of these organizations. This means better educational facilities for our pupils, better situations for our graduates, greater confidence of business firms, privilege of transfer of tuition from one Accredited School to another, a National Bureau to place graduates anywhere in the United States free of charge. THESE FACTS ARE WORTH MONEY.

It is Worth While to Remember

That, since you will attend but one commercial school, you cannot afford to make a mistake. The influence of an education is for life. That is the reason why you should attend our school which is FULLY ACCREDITED.

Another says, "The Janesville Business College makes good every time. These are only a few of the many commendatory remarks made of our school."

The Best Young People Patronize It

One young lady with a Normal School education and who had taught five years, said: "I had a poor opinion of Business Colleges until I attended yours. You have the best and most enthusiastic teachers, the most business-like management, the most perfect discipline, and give your pupils the most thorough practical training it has ever been my privilege to know." Over 60 high school graduates with us last year.

Parents Laud It

A mother recently called at the office and said, "I cannot thank you enough for the kindness you have shown my son and daughter and the thoroughness of their instruction while in your school. It is just the place to send young people. They will be looked after in the best manner possible. You watch their moral and educational advantages. Many of my friends speak in the highest terms of the way you have cared for their sons and daughters. It's a safe school to attend."

In eighteen and eighty-nine, according to the agreement between the Barnum and the Forepaugh shows, the Adam Forepaugh show came west. That season it was in arms over the labor question and in many towns in the west that we were to show in, there were hundreds and thousands of people employed, many of them were out of work.

We were billed to show most of the larger towns through Illinois and at the time the advance agent billed the different towns the strike question did not look so bad. Streator, Illinois, was one of the towns billed and this was where several hundred coal miners had been at work and every week seemed to make the strike question worse. The coal miners had been idle for many weeks and the most of them were out of money and getting desperate. But the town was billed and we had to show there or meet a big loss in cancelling the day and as the millionaire showman would not to the Streator miners and their families it was up to Adam Forepaugh to do something.

But the witty old German was equal to the situation, for about a week before we were to show in Streator he called his newspaper man into the ticket wagon and said to him:

"I want you to go Streator and write a nice article saying that I want all the children of the striking miners between the ages of three and eighteen to be my guests at a dinner to be served in the cook tent especially set apart for them at 12 o'clock noon and after that to be my guests at the afternoon performance, and that I will reserve seats for as many as will come." And this move on the part of Mr. Forepaugh was certainly one of the right direction.

The tables in the big tent were set for six hundred guests, and at that they had to serve a second dinner for there were over one thousand children who took dinner that day as the guests of Adam Forepaugh, and one o'clock they were marched into the big tent to witness the afternoon show. There were many small children whom their mothers thought were too small to be sent alone, and in cases of this kind, where the mothers accompanied them, they were also guests at the dinner and the show as well. And in place of the show or the millionaire owner, exciting the enmity of the miners, there was one millionaire that looked good to the striking miners.

But Mr. Forepaugh did not live to witness the show again, for he died on the 24th day of the month of January and shortly after that the widow received more than one letter of condolence from Streator, Illinois. In all departments of a big circus there are always more or less people tiring of the business and at different times, never thinking how hard it might be to fill their places. This same year some three or four of the musicians in the band had quit at different times, and one of the leaders of the band would start out early in the morning and try and find a musician or two that might take the places of those who had left. In a certain town in Wisconsin he found a young man about nineteen years of age who was a good slide trombone player and his ambition was to travel with a big circus.

He had just bought him a fine, big instrument and the leader of the band told him to be on the show grounds at such a time, that there would be a uniform for him there and that the parade would start at such a time. The young man was there with his new horn long before time for the parade.

He donned his new uniform and took his seat in the band wagon with his new horn three-quarters of an hour before time for the parade to start. He seemed to want to be in exhibition in case any of his friends should show up so that they could get a good look at him.

With the show for many years was an old elephant called Gold Dust. Gold Dust for many years had placed the cages in the menagerie and moved different wagons around on the lot, and while he was inclined to be peaceable he walked around near the band wagon, took a look at the new musician and his horn, and well did old Gold Dust know that he was a new comer and probably thought that he had no business there. Gold Dust reached up, caught the young man in his trunk and dashed him to the ground, breaking his new horn into many pieces and injuring the young man quite a little. But did not break any bones.

The young man's career as a musician with a big circus was a short one. He was taken to his home and a physician called. He was given money with which to buy a new horn, with the promise of a position as soon as he recovered from his injuries, but this seemed to be enough for the young man, for although he was given the route of the show for four weeks ahead and was expected to be on in a week or ten days, he never showed up.

The Powers' elephants, playing at the Nixon, Atlantic City, last week frightened a horse, which dashed up the incline from the arena and crashed into a roller chair in which was seated Adam Forepaugh, Jr., of Philadelphia. Forepaugh, who is an invalid, was flung into the air and landed on the back in a shower of glass. Many people rushed to his aid and when he had recovered from the shock he was taken to his hotel. It was only last week in Chicago that the lobby of the new Hotel Sherman was turned into a "big top" with its sawdust ring and circus performance, brought there for the benefit of the engineers who were holding a convention in Chicago. A horse, five ponies and hundreds of persons watched. The band played and two men sold peanuts and red lemonade. A "daredevil" death-defying act constituted the program on the last night. Trapeze performers flitted with death-defying wire performers "defied the laws of gravitation." It would have been a three ring circus if there had been two more rings. The circus was given in the middle of the hotel lobby. The chairs were removed and a heavy mat placed there. Circus seats were placed about the ring and men and women in evening gowns crowded the mezzanine balcony.

The circus was given as a part of the entertainment for the Traveling Engineers' association, which was holding its annual convention at the hotel. Franklin Du Vaul, chief engineer for the Crane company, was the ringmaster, and he wore the patent leather boots, white trousers, stovepipe hat, and four-in-hand whip which accompany every regular ringmaster. Mr. Penn's announcing was good for an engineer.

Frank J. Berling, manager of the hotel, opened the performance by leading his Lynchburg cornet band in the grand march. The acts, which included the talking horse, jugglers, monkeys, Sheffield ponies, clown and slack wire walkers were furnished by F. M. Barnes, manager of the Great Northern hippodrome. John Winkler, in his solitary clown act, ended the performance.

This week also marks another epoch in the circus business, the retirement of Col. William F. Cody from the sawdust arena he has graced so long. By order of the United States court, his show property was sold at auction at Denver yesterday, and it marks the close of the veteran showman's career as owner of a big show. In this connection the following dispatch from Denver is interesting:

Denver, Colo., Aug. 21.—Two men stood and glowered at each other before the auctioneer who today was selling under the hammer the personal effects of Colonel William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), by court order, following the bankruptcy of the old plainsman's Wild West show.

Isham, the famous white horse ridden by the former Indian fighter, was led out. "Am I offered?" sang out the auctioneer, slapping the steed on the flanks.

"Ten dollars," shouted one of the men, who was an Indian. "Twenty," raised the other, whose flowing hair, broad hat and high boots denoted the westerner of the day that is all but dead. The westerner, after a hot contest, got the mount at $150. The amount was more than the Indian could marshal.

"It's criminal," it is asserted the Indian with considerable asperity, as the horse was led away by its new owner to the Indian reservation. "I sold him back to Buffalo Bill, and if that guy doesn't give him back I'll steal that horse. I sold my own saddle and bridle, the only things I've got, to raise money to bid on that horse."

The westerner overheard the remark. "Pard, slip her here. It takes a man to talk like that," he addressed the Indian. "I'm Col. J. C. Bills of Lincoln, Neb., and I've been in the business for a hundred years or thereabouts, and your purpose in wanting to buy Isham was just the same as mine. He goes back to his old man tomorrow and I'll come all the way from Lincoln to do this."

The Indian is Carlo Miles, also an old frontier day friend of Colonel Cody. The sale marks the end of Col. Cody's career as a showman. So far as public exhibitions are concerned, he has shot the ashes from the last cigar and chased the last Indian.

Of the hundreds of thousands of young men who have visited Buffalo Bill's Wild West show during the past quarter of a century, there are probably few who will not feel regret at the announcement that because of financial difficulties, the show has had its final "round-up."

Col. Cody has turned his seventieth year. During more than half his life he has been a prominent figure in the public eye. Mule driver, pony express rider, stage driver, scout, soldier, hunter, cowboy—are a few of the occupations which made his career probably the most picturesque of living men.

From the day that his father was killed in a fight that gave "bloody Kansas" its name, Col. Cody was never idle. At the age of 15, already a man in size and strength, he had been herder, messenger and express driver and had won a name as a dead shot and a horseman with few equals.

Under Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston he saw his first Indian fighting. The civil war found him a private in the 7th Kansas Cavalry, an active "Jayhawker" regiment and for more than 10 years after the close of the war services, first as scout and later as chief of scouts in the Indian wars. His commanders included Gens. Sheridan, Miles, Crook, Ord and Fry—all the famous Indian fighters of the period. It was when he was chief of scouts under Gen. Crook that he won fame by killing in single combat the Indian chief, Yellow Hand, knife against tomahawk.

In 1887 he won his title of Buffalo Bill. It was then that a gang of 1200 men were laying tracks of the Kansas Pacific across the plains and were furnishing for fresh meat. Cody volunteered to furnish the meat and in 18 months, with his horse Brigham and his favorite breach-loader, "Lucifer," he killed 4280 bison.

In the '70s Col. Cody led a band in a melodrama of the West and it was the success of this which led to the formation of the "Wild West show," in which his name has been linked for thirty years. The big show was launched in earnest in 1883. The first performance was given in Madison Square Garden, New York City, when Henry Ward Beecher introduced the famous plainsman and scout to the public. On the first performance of the show in Washington a few weeks later Gen. Philip Sheridan acted as master of ceremonies, riding in the Deadwood stage coach (in which a Native American and a Black Hills) accompanied by President Arthur. The army officers attended, and the Speaker of the House found it necessary to adjourn on account of a lack of quorum.

When Buffalo Bill first launched his show the experienced men in the business laughed at him and said that it was a wild scheme, but in less than six months he was making more money than Barnum. The show toured Europe several times and was as successful there as on this side of the water.

How much of Col. Cody has left of the millions of dollars he has earned in the show business is problematical. Of late years the profits have not been so large as formerly. It is said also that the famous old scout has lost considerable sums in poor investments. But those who are in the best position to know declare that the personal fortune of Buffalo Bill is unimpaired by the disasters that have overtaken the show that bears his name. It is generally believed that he is well fixed financially and in no danger of coming to want in his old age.

In talking over his future plans, Buffalo Bill says: "I expect to spend my remaining years in the West. Every cent that I have made in the show business I have invested in this section in developing the arid plains that are now fine home lands people with happy American families. It was the first to undertake and successfully accomplish results under the Carey Land Act through irrigation, the locality being in the Big Horn Basin. Once I spent $750,000 in digging an irrigation canal before I got a cent returned. In addition to my large land holdings in Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska I possess many valuable mining claims in Arizona."

Worth Knowing.—If a package of value is to be sent a great distance, it is an excellent idea to provide the box with a cover of unbleached muslin securely sewed in place. If the shelves and floors of closets are wiped with water which is hot with cayenne pepper, insects will be kept away. Borax and alum are good to put into the cracks.

The Theatre

SCENE FROM "THE THIEF." AT MYERS THEATRE, SUNDAY AUGUST 24.

With remarkable cast, headed by Miss Janet Allyn, Henri Bernstein's Myers theatre on Sunday, August 24 matinee and evening. It can safely be said that "The Thief" will go down in annals as one of the most popular strong dramatic plays that has ever reached this city.

A consuming ambition to appear attractive and well dressed in the eyes of her husband, coupled with the forgivable feminine predisposition to a harmless flirtation forms the simple thread of the story that winds itself into an amazing tangle of domestic infelicity. The story is said to be one of intense dramatic situations. It is drama too, of the richest order, powerful, gripping with a confirming sense that just such circumstances and conditions are so subtly connected in "The Thief" are not impossible with normal characters placed under somewhat abnormal life relations.

In a criticism of the play, the Arkansas Democrat of Little Rock, Ark., has this to say: "In the presentation of 'The Thief' at the Kemper Theatre last night the players were admirably cast. As Marie Louise Voysin, the erring wife, Miss Janet Allyn, gave a most acceptable account of herself.

She classes high with an emotional actress. Her work has not been surpassed on a local stage this season, except, possibly by Mrs. Leslie Carter. In the second act which is tense from beginning to end, she was seen in a thorough test and her work brought repeated and merited accolades. In the third act where she makes her final appeal to her husband, she gave a powerful touch of realism to her part.

To add a sense of the completely artistic stage setting throughout was well adapted and elaborate making the play as a whole one of the noble theatrical offerings of the year."

DISEASE IS AN EFFECT!
SO IS HEALTH!

Disease is the Effect of a Spine Out of Line.
Health is the Effect of the Proper Distribution of Nerve Force.

The whole nervous system of the human body radiates from the spinal cord which is supplied with nervous energy by the brain. If this nervous energy is impeded at any point along the spine, through subluxations of the vertebrae, disease is bound to result. The part of the body affected by the nerve force from the pinched nerve, cannot perform its proper function through lack of this nourishment, becomes weakened and shriveled and trouble occurs in a short time.

My Chiropractic Adjustments remove this spinal pressure on the nerves. The freed nerves are allowed to perform their proper duties. Nature effects a cure. Thousands of people in Rock County have come to me during the past three years for Adjustments and are now well and happy. Don't wonder why you are sick. Don't procrastinate, hoping you will get well. Don't wait another day. Come and see me at once.

Hay Fever Banished by Chiropractic

The mucous membranes weakened through spinal subluxations become susceptible to the pollen floating through the air at this time of the year. Sufferers from this distressing malady can find relief in my Chiropractic Adjustments and need no longer take long and expensive Northern trips.

Are You Troubled With Any of These Diseases?

If you are, come and see me at once. I successfully adjust the cause of Abscesses, Apoplexy, Asthma, Appendicitis, Blindness, Bright's Disease, Brain Fever, Bladder Troubles, Bronchitis, Constipation, Cataract, Catarrh, Colic, Eczema, Erysipelas, Fever, Gout, Gall Stones, Gout, Gastritis, Curvatures, Consumption, Diabetes, Diarrhoea, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Dysentery, Deafness, La Grippe, Nervous Debility, Pleurisy, Paralysis, Pneumonia, Peritonitis, Piles, Rheumatism, Hay Fever, Heart Disease, Heart Burn, Indigestion, Insanity, Jaundice, Kidney Diseases, Liver Diseases, Scalds, Spleen, St. Vitus Dance, Stuttering, Stammering, Spinal Diseases, Scurvy, Tumors, Vertigo.

WELCOME THE TRUCK

Organized Labor Has Evidenced
No Hostility Toward Horseless Vehicle.

MEANS LESS HOURS OF WORK

President Williams of the Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs Has Stated the Attitude of the Unions Concerning the Matter.

"Motor truck manufacturers and owners all over the country are showing great interest in the attitude of organized labor as represented by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, toward modern vehicles of transportation," says F. C. Chrysler of Boston. "The speech of President Arthur Williams of the Brotherhood at a recent meeting in New York, which was attended by both truck owners and operators, is being widely and favorably commented on. He said:

"In our particular trade or calling employees are breaking in their drivers and employees and transferring them from horse-drawn vehicles to the motor vehicle. Ninety per cent. of the chauffeurs in every city and town who are members of our organization were formerly teamsters or drivers. They have been transferred from the wagon to the automobile. They are doing the same work they were formerly doing. We are thoroughly satisfied with the change and our work in nearly every instance is becoming easier.

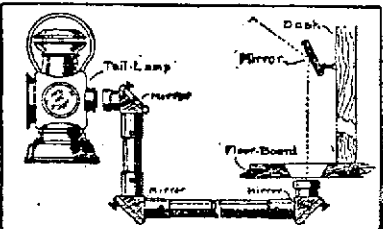

"For instance, on Sunday morning we have no stable work to do. We can stay with our families; there are no horses to be taken care of. This applies also to inclement weather and to the very warm weather. The driver does not have to worry when going up hill about the strain on his horses if he is driving a motor truck. The advantages gained in change from horse-drawn wagons to motor vehicles are too many to enumerate."

"That one paragraph shows better than anything else could that the driver, more than any other individual, is entitled to great credit for the success of the motor truck in modern transportation. A conscientious driver, one who has been noted for the careful and humane manner in which he handled his horses and wagon, makes the best motor vehicle operator in the world. Without him the motor truck would still be more or less of a venture for the business man; and a costly one, too. A man who will take good care of his horses, through a spirit of humanity will care for a machine in the same way. And it is care that counts in successful motor truck operation.

"It is very pleasing to manufacturers and owners of motor trucks to see the teamsters take this attitude toward the commercial vehicle. It is an absolute assurance that the power truck will advance by leaps and bounds in the estimation of the men who have transportation problems, for what pleases the employee satisfies the employer. The driver who welcomes the motor truck is constantly striving to bring out the best in his machine, and with this spirit the employer is continually reminded of the superiority of the new method over the old."

Invention of Woman Motorist.
An Omaha woman, who is a devotee of the motor, finds a great deal of satisfaction in driving her car since adding to it a device of her own invention. It is a folding safety fender, which is so compacted that it does not mar the appearance of the car when contained in its trim metal case. In an emergency, however, it is opened by a simple pressure of the foot upon the trip alongside the brake, and immediately it throws out a four-foot net of strong mesh, steel springs and a frame capable of sustaining 250 pounds. The pedestrian is thus protected, and the motorist is relieved of the fear of damage suits or the unpleasant feeling that he has involuntarily hurt some one.—Motor.

CAN WATCH REAR LIGHT

An ingenious device for "keeping tabs" on your rear light.—From Motor.

Stops Runaway Autos.
A simple way in which passengers in a runaway auto can stop the machine is suggested by a distinguished French mechanical engineer. What he urges is the installation at the back seat of the auto of a contrivance for controlling the spark magneto in case the chauffeur becomes sick or dies or is thrown out of the machine.

Such a contrivance, he says, should be compulsory under law, and it would cost but $1 for each auto and it would be covered with a glass case, to be broken only in case of emergency.

The engineer's suggestion is the outgrowth of the accident in which Isadora Duncan's two children lost their lives by drowning a few days ago in a branch of the River Seine.

Sweet, Solemn Thought.
The only safe thing to do when you put your foot in it is to stand still.

1914

35 horsepower

Electric lights

114-inch wheelbase

Again the price comes down--

---again the value goes up!

---again we prove the power and possibilities of large production.

Last year we built 40,000 cars. This was not enough for the demand by nearly 10,000 cars. This year we will manufacture 50,000 cars (twice as many as we did two years ago), cover the car with additional value and what will strike you as most remarkable, make the price lower than ever. Such is the net economical result of manufacturing one type of automobile on an enormous scale.

You who have followed our success from season to season have watched our annual models grow in value and decline in price. And as our prices came down our production went up. We have always and unfailingly given the public more automobile for less money than any other manufacturer in the industry.

Here are the big 1914 facts!

The motor has been enlarged. The bore is 4 1-8 inch—stroke 4 1-2 inch. It is conservatively rated at 35 horsepower and will develop 50 miles an hour. It has a five bearing crankshaft and three bearings on the camshaft.

The wheelbase has been lengthened to 114 inches. This, as you know, is the average wheelbase of $1200 cars. And a long wheelbase eliminates road jars and rut jolts.

The tires are larger -- 33x4 inch Q. D. Large tires insure less upkeep expense, smoother operation and add to the appearance of the car.

The body design is symmetrical and graceful. It will appeal to those who admire the beauty of simplicity. It has a European cowl dash and full U doors (fore and rear) with disappearing hinges. The body is richly finished in dark Brewster green, edged with lighter green stripings and trimmed in heavy polished nickel and aluminum.

The upholstery is Turkish--soft, luxurious and comfortable. The rear back-cushion is 18 1-4 inch deep.

Model R. Schebler carburetor	Electric horn
Three-quarter floating rear axle	Flush U doors with disappearing hinges.
33x4 Q. D. tires.

Brakes are very large. Respond gradually, positively and smoothly without jumping or jerking. Either brake will keep the car under perfect control at any speed with a full load.

Rear axle is three-quarter floating, fitted with the famous Hyatt bearings. Front axle is I-beam section drop-forged in one heat without welding. Timken bearings on front wheels.

The equipment is the pick of the market--and is complete. It includes such high-priced features as one of the finest electric lighting systems with storage battery. Head side and tail lights are electric; dash light is also electric. All light and control buttons are located on the dash under the cowl. Set flush with the dash is a $50 Stewart Speedometer--the most practical speed indicator in the world. Timken bearings, Splitdorf magneto, Model R Schebler carburetor, Electric horn, 18-inch steering wheel, Mohair top and boot, and clear-vision windshield are a few of the many other finishing touches that go to make the car complete.

The foregoing is but a short digest of the newest Overland, yet it concisely itemizes and sums up the greater Overland value. When you fully realize what an exceptional and economical buy the 1914 Overland is--after the great value facts have become firmly lodged in your commercial and calculating brain, remember this--that in the very face of this increased value the price has again come down.

Price reduction is a condition that is controlled and regulated by factory facilities--the larger the manufacturer the lower he can market his merchandise. As we are producing more cars of this type than any other manufacturer in the world we can effect industrial economies which make it possible for us to market a car that will, on the average, cost you 30 per cent. less than any other similar model.

Now--see this car.

Deliveries will be made according to the action you take. Prompt action means prompt delivery.

FORTY YEARS AGO

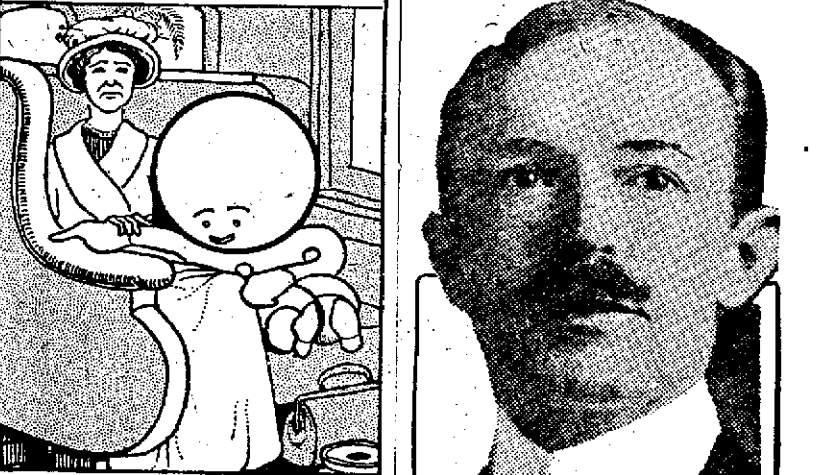

Janesville Daily Gazette, August 23, 1873.—About three o'clock this afternoon a tornado and hail storm broke loose at the northwest corner of Porter and swept with destructive force in the northeast direction, laying to waste numerous promising fields of tobacco in its path. The destruction is complete; the leaves of the tobacco plant being ground to fragments and in many instances uprooted by the terrible force of the storm. W. Slattery, whose tobacco crop is a total wreck, thinks the tornado was about four miles in width and that it spent its force in the towns of Porter, Union, Center, Plymouth and Janesville. Other towns were all visited by severe rain and hail storms yesterday. The other towns suffered to a far less degree than Porter. The tobacco was nearly ready to cut and a better crop was never gathered in Rock county than stood in the Porter fields yesterday morning. But during the half hour's storm in the afternoon the force of the wind has reduced it to a complete worthless condition.

The fire alarm which sounded at half past one o'clock on Sunday morning was occasioned by the burning of J. C. Metcalf's barn and an out building of the first ward school. The two structures being two feet apart. The fire department was quick to make the answer but the fire was remote from the engine house and little could be done except to check the flames from going beyond their original limits. Mr. Metcalf's loss was about three hundred and fifty dollars which is partially covered by insurance.

We have mentioned several times the depredations of drunken boys on our streets and have done it because their performances are of a flagrant nature as to be annoying and dangerous to the unprotected ones who may chance to be on the streets without a guardian. The best plan to stop these forms of hilarity would be to confine the youngsters to the lock-up for a chance for them to consider seriously their actions in disgracing the city.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"TO HAVE someone write, "Thank you, Ruth Cameron, you express just my sentiments." Is of course a great pleasure to me. Being extremely human I like to be applauded. Nevertheless I think I can say honestly that it is almost as great a pleasure to have a letter friend differ with me and write a letter like the following:

"You say in this morning's paper, 'Almost all women are born symbolists. If more men would realize this fact we should have happier marriages.'"

"This is one of the instances where I disagree with you."

"If women were less given to symbolism we should have happier marriages."

"The trouble is that most young wives expect too much of their husbands. They want their husbands to be continually at their beck and call. They do not realize that their husbands work all day to keep up the home, that they share their earnings with their wives and provide them with clothes and pay for their amusements. Of course this is as it should be. The wife in return looks after the house and her husband's welfare."

"But do not most wives—I am not speaking of drudges,—and plenty of time during the day to enjoy themselves? Can they not go to luncheons, card parties and matinees with their friends? Have they not enough leisure even if they do their own work, to receive friends, or to sit down for an hour to read a book?"

"Then why should not a husband be entitled to spend a free afternoon at the ball game or in a tramp into the country with some friends?"

"I have a friend whose husband is a passionate huntsman. When they were engaged he said to her, 'There is one thing which I shall never give up, and that is my hunting. I go hunting or on a cross country tramp with some friends every Saturday and Sunday, and shall continue to do so after I am married. I hope you will not object to this.'"

"Being a sensible girl she said she would not mind, but would enjoy herself in her own way."

"They have been married over two years now and are the happiest couple I know of. My friend told me only the other day that they have never had a quarrel. Almost every weekend he goes on his hunting trips, she spends those days with relatives or friends, and when they come home Sunday evening they have lots of things to tell each other."

"Besides they often go out together and have many good times."

"Another young friend is just the opposite. She would not stand for anything like that. When he goes out without her she makes herself miserable by wondering whose company he prefers to hers. She is always feeling hurt over some imaginary neglect, and though they have hardly been married a year, they have already had many serious quarrels."

"Which of these wives will make her marriage a success?"

"I think the first wife, the one who is content with her husband's life and work, and who enjoys her own life in her own way."

"I think the first wife, the one who is content with her husband's life and work, and who enjoys her own life in her own way."

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

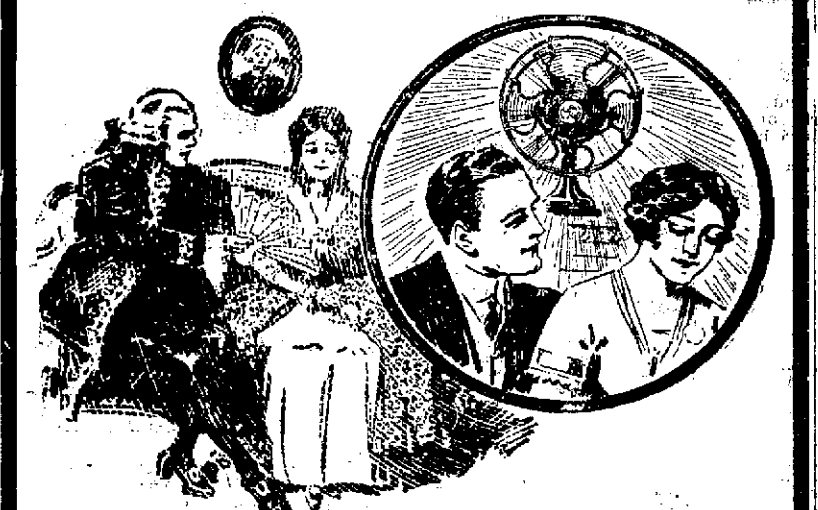

BY MRS. J. H. BROWN

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) How should one address a man's name on the envelope? Should it be merely T. H. Brown, or Mr. T. H. Brown? (2) In writing a business letter to a friend, should it begin Dear Mr. So-and-so, or merely Mr. So-and-so. (3) In addressing a letter to a doctor should one use the form T. H. Brown, M. D., or Dr. T. H. Brown? (4) Must a magazine story be type-written or merely written in ink? (5) What is appropriate for a traveling hat? Is any form of a straw hat in place for a girl? AGATHA

(1) Mr. T. H. Brown.

(2) "Dear Mr. So-and-so" is the conventional form.

From the Ivory-backed Fan of Colonial Times with which the pompous 18th century gallant cooled the fair brow of his lady love, each succeeding generation has witnessed almost incredible changes in comforts and conveniences; manners and modes of living.

To the Electric Fan of Today

we are indebted for quick, inexpensive, easily obtainable relief from the most sultry summer weather. Every electrically lighted home should be equipped with an Electric Fan. Its delightfully cool breezes cost less than one cent an hour.

Janesville Electric Co.

(3) The latter form is usually used. (4) It should be typewritten if possible; otherwise copy it legibly in ink. (5) A small soft hat is suitable. Some straw hats are too old for a girl. She should get a style suitable for her age.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Can you tell me what will take mildew out of a pink mull dress that has been injured with water? There are large spots on one side of the dress skirt and several large spots on the bottom. (2) Can you also tell me what will remove reddish spots on a dark brown grosgrain silk that are left there as a result of water. I hope you can help me because both of them are entirely ruined if the spots cannot be removed. The spots are very large and noticeable. ANXIUS.

(1) I do not think you can take the mildew spots out without also taking out the color of the dress. You might discharge the color of the dress by cooking it in a solution of chloride of lime, rinsing thoroughly, then hanging in the sun to dry, and then dye the whole dress over.

(2) You might try gasoline or chloroform for this, but am not sure that it will work. Rub in toward the center of the stain. The best thing would be to send the dress to a professional cleaner.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it all right for six girls to go camping with one of their mothers as chaperone? (2) What do you think about red hair? I am a red-head, and I try not to care when people joke me about it, but I do sometimes.

(3) What is good for freckles? (4) Some girls say that they ought to wear high heels or we will be flat-footed when we get older. Is this true? COUSINS.

(1) Yes. (2) Red hair is very pretty if it is kept clean and well brushed. Helen of Troy, the most beautiful woman in history, had red hair.

(3) Buttermilk or lemon juice. (4) High heels are apt to give you a broken arch and to make your back weak. Also, they keep you from walking gracefully, and your health suffers when you cannot walk long distances on account of high heels.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it wrong for a girl of fourteen to go to a party with a boy friend or fifteen or sixteen if your mother does not object? (2) What would be suitable to serve at a lunch for a few girl friends about CURIOUS.

(1) No. (2) This would be a nice menu: Creamed Chicken, Mashed Potatoes, Corn Fritters, Jelly.

Mixed Fruit Salad with Whipped Cream, Macaroni with Cheese, Chocolate Sautéed Nuts, Bonbons.

SUITABLE BREAKFAST DISHES.

Breakfast is the troublesome meal to prepare, as the appetite is not at its best and it is so easy to fall into a rut and prepare the same things over and over. Breakfast dishes should be simple, wholesome, and easy of digestion. The hurried breakfast is all too common. Take time to eat a substantial meal, have it well served and a sufficient change to avoid monotony.

Toast—As common as this dish is it is seldom served in perfection. The bread should be sliced and warmed in the oven to dissipate the moisture then browned quickly on both sides before a good heat. Toast should be crisp all the way through, well browned and free from burnt corners or moist, soggy places in the center of the slice. Dry toast should never be piled but served in a rack, buttered toast may be kept hot for a short while over hot water.

Sausage Cakes—Take a pound of sausage meat, add to it a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, a little lemon rind and grated onion, a bit of nutmeg, and cloves, make into round flat cakes and put into a well greased baking tin and bake for twenty minutes. These sausages may be served with tomato sauce and fried potatoes or plain without any accompaniment.

An omelet is always a good breakfast dish and one may vary them indefinitely with the accompanying sauce or with different seasonings.

Eggs and Mushrooms—Cook as many eggs in the shell as there are persons to serve, remove the shells when cold and chop fine. Cook in a small amount of butter a few mushrooms, add to the chopped egg and turn them all into a rich white sauce made with the top of the milk, a cup and two tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter cooked together. Serve hot on crisp slices of buttered toast.

Bacon should be sliced thin, be thoroughly chilled and be fried crisp and dry, tipping the frying pan to drain the bacon before serving. Bacon is one of our more easily digested fats and should be often on our breakfast tables.

Conclusive Statement.

Experts declare that idle men make the best lovers. It doesn't require an expert to prove the fact that idle men also make the best villains.—Youngstown Telegram.

THE HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Good flavoring can be made from lemon and orange peel. Boil the skins together, then make a syrup of it and bottle for future use.

Try fresh grated horseradish in vinegar for neuralgia. Use it as you would any other condiment.

Never iron black cotton stockings, as the heat fades them more than the washing.

Next time you have a bilious headache, try the juice of a lemon in a cup of strong, clear coffee.

THE TABLE.

Blueberry Muffins—One-third cup of butter, one-quarter cup of vinegar, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, one egg, three-fourths cup of milk, two cups of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one pint of blueberries, cream the sugar and butter, add the egg and beat all together for five minutes. Sift flour and baking powder three times. Add half the milk and half the flour, mix thoroughly, and add the rest of the flour and milk and when well blended, fold in the blueberries, taking great care not to crush them. Fill buttered gem pans half full of the mixture and bake twenty minutes.

Salt Codfish Chowder—A quarter of a cupful of salt pork fat, two large onions cut in small dice, two cupfuls of shredded codfish, one cupful of cream, four teaspoonfuls of butter, three cupfuls of potatoes cut in cubes, salt, pepper, red pepper, one cupful of boiling water, eight buttered crackers, two tablespoonfuls of flour. Soak the codfish in cold water for two hours, then drain. Parboil the potatoes for ten minutes. Cook onions in pork fat, add drained potatoes, fish and one cupful of boiling water, cook until the potatoes are tender. Blend the flour and butter together, add the cream and the seasonings. Combine mixtures, cook for eight minutes and serve with the buttered crackers which have been soaked in milk.

Spice Nuts—One and a half pounds of flour, four heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, half a pound of molasses, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of ground ginger, one teaspoonful each of ground cinnamon and allspice, half an ounce of baking soda, three ounces of candied orange peel. Warm the molasses, add to it the butter, the sugar, spices, soda and the orange peel, chopped fine. Pour the mixture into the flour, knead into a dough, roll it out on a floured baking board, and cut into rounds with a small cutter. Bake on greased baking tins in a moderate oven for ten minutes.

Pineapple Meringue Tart—Measure one cupful of pured and chopped pineapple. Beat two egg yolks with two-thirds cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour and one-fourth cupful of water; then mix with the pineapple. Turn this into a pastry lined pie tin, and bake in a moderate oven until the crust is done and the filling well set. Beat the two egg whites until stiff and dry, then add two tablespoonfuls of pulverized sugar and beat again; heap roughly over the top of tart while hot; place in the oven and delicately brown. Serve cold.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

HELPFUL HOME DISCOVERIES.

I believe it was Fortia in "The Merchant of Venice" who said words to this effect: "It were easier to teach twenty what were good to do, than be one of twenty to follow mine own teachings."

The domestic science writer who, seated at her desk, tells the housekeeper of all walks and stations in life how and when she would do the necessary work in the home, from cooking and washing dishes to making beds and taking care of babies, is she is conscientious in her writing, has no easy task. She knows that nothing but actual experience in her own life will make whatever she writes for others useful and practical. She must have everyday experiences in the kitchen and have every nook and corner of the home to be able to give any suggestions to others which are worth while.

Housekeepers Skeptical.

Every housekeeper has said many times when reading of the law and order, housekeeping efficiency and good meals for five dollars a week: "Yes, that reads well, but I'd like to see her do it."

I have said it many times myself in my own housekeeping which has included everything from the usual regulation home to the very simplest light housekeeping on the smallest scale.

But with it all, I have always been looking for and finding helpful discoveries which have really meant more to me many times than some one big thing which only comes once in a great while. Again I have been reminded of this repeatedly by women attending our lectures who have said to me:

"It is the little things gained at these lectures which are so helpful to me."

Another said, after having some helpful suggestion:

"I could go home now, before the lecture is half over, and feel that it was worth while coming just for that one thing."

And so I have gathered a few of these together which I shall pass on, hoping they will help others in adding ease and pleasure and greater efficiency to the profession of housekeeping.

Pass-it-Along Club.

Any cakes or gingerbread may be baked in paraffine lined paper boxes and saved washing pans. Tie a tape or string around the box lengthwise, as the cake expands while baking, pushing out the sides of the box unless tied.

Paper dish cloths and towels are as necessary in the kitchen as fuel. Dirty dish rags are responsible for many diseases, and constant washing takes time and work. Substitute the paper dish cloth and paper towel for at least emergencies. Try it a month and you will never be without it.

Dishes properly washed, turned in a wire drainer and rinsed in hot water need no further attention but putting away. Entirely too much time is wasted in old-fashioned methods of dish washing.

Dishes with milk, flour or eggs should always have cold water run over them before putting into hot water. Cold water softens the above matters while hot water cooks and hardens them on the dishes.

A man once rang my door bell, took out his note book and said he had come to find out how to make coffee. He seemed very much surprised when I started with keeping the coffee pot sweet and clean. Once a week put a tablespoonful of bicarbonate of soda into the coffee pot, fill it nearly full of water and let boil for at least ten minutes. Then rinse well. Nine times out of ten a tainted coffee pot is responsible for poor coffee.

Cocunut purchased in boxes may become fresh as new by wrapping for at least ten minutes in a cloth wrung—not too dry—from milk or water. This is merely putting back the necessary moisture into the coconut.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

By FRANCIS JOYCE KENNEDY

Efficiency is the talk of the day. The railroad man wants to know the efficiency of rails, ties, everything pertaining to his engine and the road. The business man will take time to study efficiency in salesmanship or in some other department of his business. Efficiency makes an impression on an impassive mind where other items of interest, or affairs of business, even to death rates, would be important.

It would seem as if the business mind is of the show me kind. Efficiency from start to finish is a show me plan. Other arguments may not be so easily reducible, therefore do not lend themselves so readily to business, as all business is more or less on a competitive basis.

From business to our schools is not a far cry. The loss of efficiency in our school children is not hard to prove. Generally our children are taught in classes of about forty. Out of this number are, say, five that are so impossible that the pace must be set without regard to them; at the head of the class are three or four who might rapidly be passed on to higher grades. Shall we say the remainder have a pace set that admits of about ten of the weakest keeping up? The remaining number could go much faster than they do; could learn more thoroughly. They are held back to the pace of the slower ones and low efficiency is forced upon them.

These conditions are recognized by our teachers. They work extra hard to bring the pace makers—the slow ones, along as rapidly as possible in justice to the keenest, more alert scholars. Presently they are forced by circumstances over which they have no control to enter the field of low efficiency themselves, due to the fact that from overstrain they become victims of over-fatigue. We are told that the average brain if left undirected in these days, will have a much stronger impulse to travel toward the penitentiary, the poorhouse or the untrained labor class, than the developed brain and so firmly is this fact established that education is compulsory.

Our schools may be likened to enormous educational machines that are endeavoring to turn out trained minds as their finished products. Is it logical that the body should be left untrained for the changes in a child's body between 10 and 16, are as important as those of the mind. This part of the work is left to the child, the parents, the home. Sorted out, sifted down, this means that the mothers are the ones this part of the work rests upon.

A child, your child, my child, is a little egotistical parasite. The school trains these traits out of him. Rubbing (sometimes bumping) against other children, helps him to find himself. School will soon reopen. Are we prepared for it? Are we planning on making this year the most successful school year that our children have ever had? Keeping ever in mind that home influence and help is a strong factor for success, that education without a religious foundation is like a structure built upon the sands; and that man does not live by bread alone.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Good flavoring can be made from lemon and orange peel. Boil the skins together, then make a syrup of it and bottle for future use.

Try fresh grated horseradish in vinegar for neuralgia. Use it as you would any other condiment.

Never iron black cotton stockings, as the heat fades them more than the washing.

Next time you have a bilious headache, try the juice of a lemon in a cup of strong, clear coffee.

THE TABLE.

Blueberry Muffins—One-third cup of butter, one-quarter cup of vinegar, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, one egg, three-fourths cup of milk, two cups of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one pint of blueberries, cream the sugar and butter, add the egg and beat all together for five minutes. Sift flour and baking powder three times. Add half the milk and half the flour, mix thoroughly, and add the rest of the flour and milk and when well blended, fold in the blueberries, taking great care not to crush them. Fill buttered gem pans half full of the mixture and bake twenty minutes.

Salt Codfish Chowder—A quarter of a cupful of salt pork fat, two large onions cut in small dice, two cupfuls of shredded codfish, one cupful of cream, four teaspoonfuls of butter, three cupfuls of potatoes cut in cubes, salt, pepper, red pepper, one cupful of boiling water, eight buttered crackers, two tablespoonfuls of flour. Soak the codfish in cold water for two hours, then drain. Parboil the potatoes for ten minutes. Cook onions in pork fat, add drained potatoes, fish and one cupful of boiling water, cook until the potatoes are tender. Blend the flour and butter together, add the cream and the seasonings. Combine mixtures, cook for eight minutes and serve with the buttered crackers which have been soaked in milk.

Spice Nuts—One and a half pounds of flour, four heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, half a pound of molasses, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of ground ginger, one teaspoonful each of ground cinnamon and allspice, half an ounce of baking soda, three ounces of candied orange peel. Warm the molasses, add to it the butter, the sugar, spices, soda and the orange peel, chopped fine. Pour the mixture into the flour, knead into a dough, roll it out on a floured baking board, and cut into rounds with a small cutter. Bake on greased baking tins in a moderate oven for ten minutes.

Pineapple Meringue Tart—Measure one cupful of pured and chopped pineapple. Beat two egg yolks with two-thirds cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour and one-fourth cupful of water; then mix with the pineapple. Turn this into a pastry lined pie tin, and bake in a moderate oven until the crust is done and the filling well set. Beat the two egg whites until stiff and dry, then add two tablespoonfuls of pulverized sugar and beat again; heap roughly over the top of tart while hot; place in the oven and delicately brown. Serve cold.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

HELPFUL HOME DISCOVERIES.

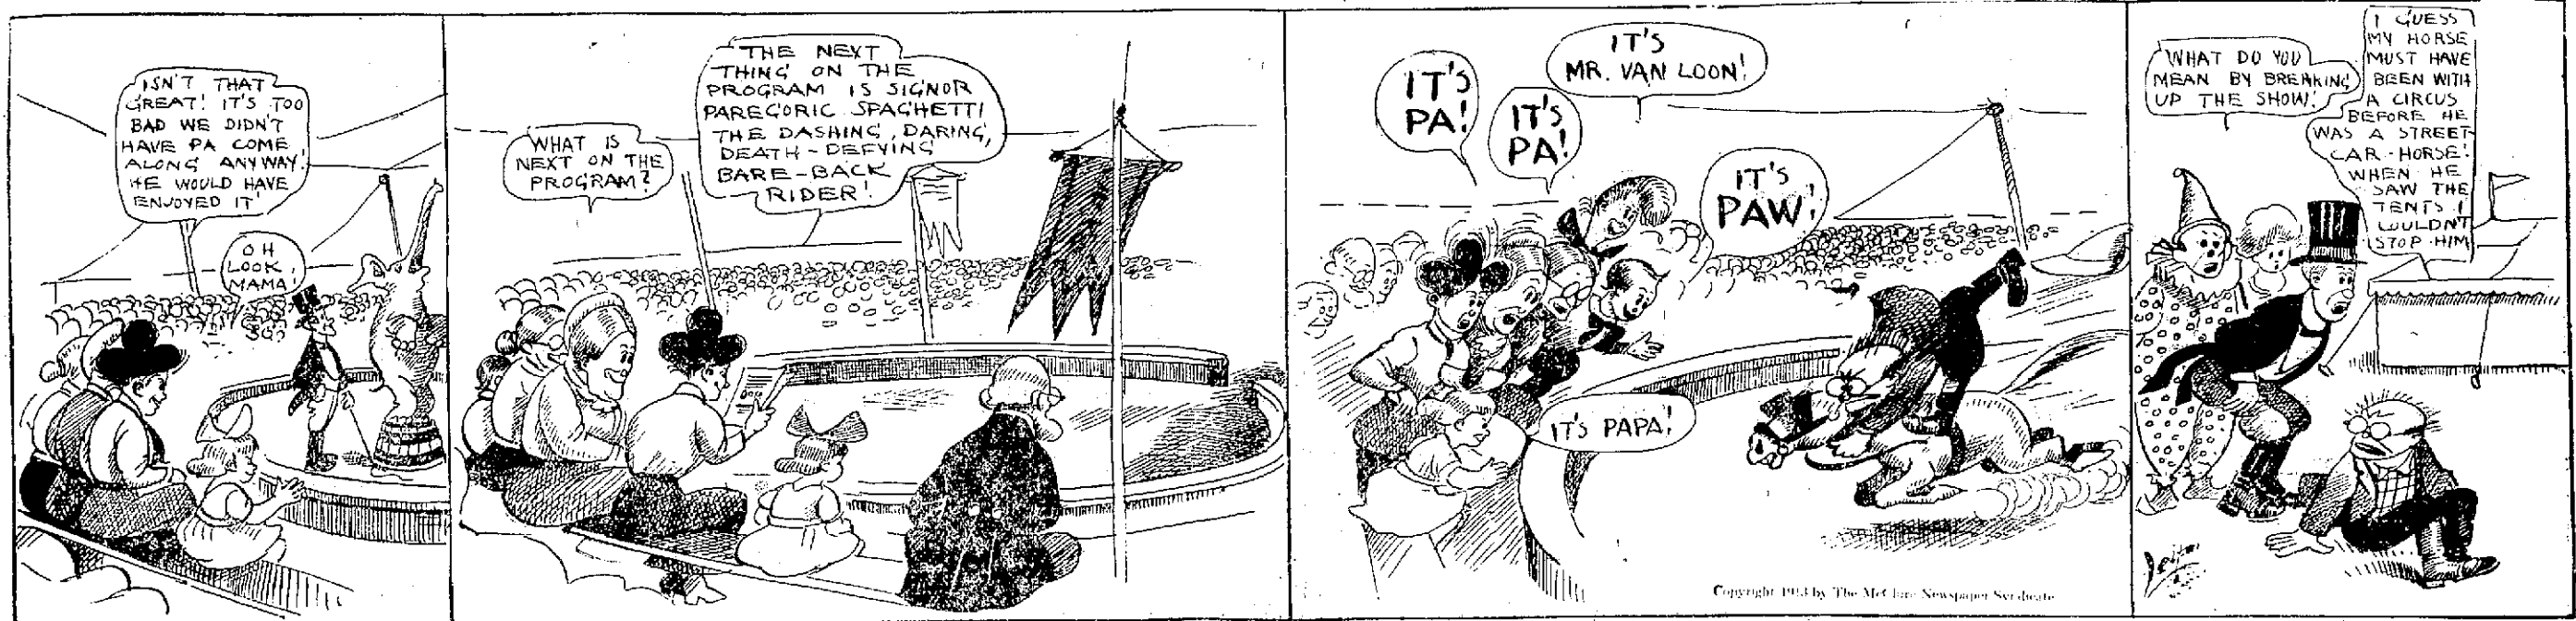

I believe it was Fortia in "The Merchant of Venice" who said words to this effect: "It were easier to teach twenty what were good to do, than be one of twenty to follow mine own teachings."

The domestic science writer who, seated at her desk, tells the housekeeper of all walks and stations in life how and when she would do the necessary work in the home, from cooking and washing dishes to making beds and taking care of babies, is she is conscientious in her writing, has no easy task. She knows that nothing but actual experience in her own life will make whatever she writes for others useful and practical. She must have everyday experiences in the kitchen and have every nook and corner of the home to be able to give any suggestions to others which are worth while.

Housekeepers Skeptical.

Every housekeeper has said many times when reading of the law and order, housekeeping efficiency and good meals for five dollars a week: "Yes, that reads well, but I'd like to see her do it."

I have said it many times myself in my own

HUSBAND TIRED OF SEEING HER SUFFER

Procured Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which made His Wife a Well Woman.

Middletown, Pa.—"I had had headache, backache and such awful bearing down pains that I could not be on my feet at times and I had organic inflammation so badly that I was not able to do my work. I could not get a good meal for my husband and one child. My neighbor said they thought my suffering was terrible. 'My husband got tired of seeing me suffer and one night went to the drug store and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me I must take it. I can't tell you all I suffered and I can't tell you all that your medicine has done for me. I was greatly benefited from the first and it has made me a well woman. I can do all my housework and even helped some of my friends as well. I think it is a wonderful help to all suffering women. I have got several to take it after seeing what it has done for me.'—Mrs. EMMA ESPENHADE, 219 East Main St., Middletown, Pa.

The Pinkham record is a proud and honorable one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"There wasn't no fame; I swear it!" he explained excitedly, "but she burned, just the same!" He rushed about from one to another displaying his injured palm to whoever would look. Darrow paid little attention to this gathering crowd. First of all, he scanned a paper he held in his hand; then plunged back again into the blackness.

Jack Warford and Hollowell, left together, hesitated uncertainly. "He'll be back," the reporter decided finally, "and he's the man to tie to." While waiting, he proceeded to pick up what information he could from the bystanders. It seemed that the first intimation of anything wrong was followed very shortly by the emergence of McCarthy, disheveled, hatless, staring, gasping. The boss had stumbled into the street, hesitated, then started south on a run. Before any one could stop him, he turned a corner and disappeared. The excitement at the Atlas Building had distracted attention from him. Nobody wondered at his getting rattled and running away. The few tenants remaining in the building had stumbled forth, vowing never to return to such a—assorted adjective—building. That was all there seemed to be to say.

In the meantime the crowd had increased from a few hundred to thousands. Police appeared. The corridors were cleared of all but a few. Among these were Hollowell and Jack Warford; the former as a reporter, the latter as the reporter's companion. Doctor Knox and Professor Eldridge arrived shortly. After a time Darrow reappeared, sauntering quite calmly from the pall of darkness, as though emerging from behind a velvet curtain.

CHAPTER XII.

The Unknown.
It now becomes necessary to glance in passing at the personal characteristics of Professor Eldridge. This man was in about his fortieth year, tall, spare, keenly intellectual in countenance, cool, possessed of an absolute reliance on the powers of science, beyond which his mental processes did not stray. His manner was distinguished by a stiff unbending formality; his expression by a glacial coldness of steel-gray eyes and a straight-line compression of thin lips; his dress by a precise and unvarying formalism, and his speech by a curious polysyllabic stiffness.

This latter idiosyncrasy would in another have seemed either priggish or facetiously intended. With Professor Eldridge it was merely a natural method of speech. Withal, his scientific attainments were not only undoubted, but so considerable as to have won for him against many odds the reputation of a great scientist. His speciality, if such it might be called, was scientific diagnosis. The exactness of scientific laws was so admirably duplicated by the exactitudes of his mind that he seemed able, by a bloodless and mechanical sympathy, to penetrate to the most obscure causes of the strangest events. It might be added that practically his only social ties were those with the Warfords, and that the only woman with whom he ever entered into conversation was Helen.

At sight of him Percy Darrow's lounging gait became accentuated to exaggeration.

"Hello, Prof!" he drawled. "On the job, I see. Good morning, Doctor," he greeted Knox. "What do you make of it?"

"I make of it that the Atlas Building will shortly be without tenants," replied the doctor; "me, for one."

Eldridge surveyed Darrow coldly through the glittering lenses of his glasses.

"The cause of these extraordinary phenomena is self-evident," he stated.

"You mean their nature, not their cause," replied Darrow. "In nature, they refer back to the interference with etheric and molecular vibrations. That," he added, "is a fact that every boy in the grammar-school physics class has figured out for himself. The cause is a different matter."

"I stand corrected," said Eldridge. "Such lapses in accuracy of statement are not unusual with me, but may be considered as concomitant with unusual circumstances."

"Right!" agreed Darrow cheerfully. "Well, what about the causes?"

"That I will determine when I am satisfied that all the elements of the problem are in my hands."

"Right!" repeated Darrow. "Well, I'll bet you a new hat I'll land the cause before you do. Be a sport!"

"I never indulge in wagers," replied Eldridge.

"Well," said Darrow to Jack and Hollowell, "come on!"

Without waiting to see if he was followed, the young man again plunged into the black and clinging darkness.

"Get hold of my coat," his voice came to the others. "We're going to climb." Accordingly they climbed, in silence, up many flights of stairs, through the cloying darkness. At last Darrow halted, turned sharp to the left, fumbled for a door, and entered a room.

"Simmons?" he said.

"Here!" came a voice.

"I thought you'd be on the job," said Darrow, with satisfaction. "How's your instrument? Going, eh? We are in the wireless office," he told the others. "Sit down, if you can find chairs. We'll wait until the sun is shining brightly, love, before we really try to get down to business. In the meantime—"

"In the meantime—" repeated both Jack and Hollowell, in a breath. "Go on, my son," conceded the latter. "I bet we have the same idea."

"Well, I was going to say that I'm not in the grammar-school physics class, and I want to know what you meant by your remark to Eldridge," said Jack.

"That's my trouble," said Hollowell. "It's simple enough," began Darrow. "We have had, first, a failure of all electricity; second, a failure of all sound; third, a failure of all light. The mind would therefore examine these things to see what they have in common. The answer simply jumps at you: Vibration. Electricity and light are vibrations in ether; sound is vibration in air or some solid. Therefore, whatever could absolutely stop vibration would necessarily stop electricity, light and sound."

"But," objected Jack, "if vibration were absolutely stopped, why wouldn't they all three be blotted out at once?"

"Because," explained Darrow, "the vibrations making these three phenomena are different in character. Sound is made by horizontal waves, for example, while electricity and light are made by transverse waves. Furthermore, the waves producing electricity and light differ in length. Now, it is conceivable that a condition which would interfere with horizontal waves would not interfere with transverse waves; or that a condition which would absolutely deaden waves two hundred and seventy ten-millionths of an inch long would have absolutely no effect on those one hundred and fifty-five ten millionths of an inch long. Am I clear?"

"Sure!" came the voices of his audience.

"That much Eldridge and any other man trained in elementary science already knows. It is no secret."

"It hasn't been published," observed Hollowell grimly.

"Well, go to it! The task of the independent investigator, of which we are some, is now to discover, first, what are those conditions, and, second, what causes them. With the exception of Mr. Hollowell, we all know what this guiding power is."

"Don't get it," growled Simmons. "Now, look here, Simmons, you are very loyal to McCarthy, for whatever reason, but your loyalty is misplaced. For one thing, your man has disappeared, and will not return. That last message scared him out. For another thing, we're going to need you in our campaign, the worst way."

"I'm from Copenhagen; you got to show me," said Simmons.

Darrow laughed softly.

"We'll show you all right," said he. He sketched briefly for Hollowell the benefit the reasoning already followed out, and which it is therefore unnecessary to repeat here. "So now," he concluded, "we will consider this hypothesis: that these phenomena are caused by one man in control of a force capable of deadening vibrations in ether and solids within certain definite limits."

"Why do you limit it?" cried Hollowell.

"Because we have had but one manifestation at a time. If this Unknown were out really to frighten—which seems to be his intention—it would be much more effective to visit us with absolute darkness and absolute silence combined. That would be really terrifying. He has not done so. Therefore, I conclude that his power is limited in applicability."

"Isn't that a little doubtful?" spoke up Jack.

"Of course," said Darrow cheerfully. "That's where we're going to win out on this sporting proposition with our dear Brother Eldridge. He won't accept any hypothesis unless it is absolutely copper-riveted. We will."

"I think you underestimate Eldridge," spoke up Hollowell. "He's the only original think-tank in a village of horse troughs."

"I don't underestimate him one bit," countered Darrow; "but we have a head-start on him with our reasoning; that's all. He's absolutely sure to come to the conclusions I have just detailed, only he'll get there a little more slowly. That's why I want you in on this thing, Hollowell."

"How's that?"

"We'll publish everything up to Gate and cut the ground from under him."

"What's your special grouch on Eldridge, anyway?" asked Jack.

"I like to worry him," replied Percy Darrow non-committally.

At that moment the darkness disappeared as though some one had turned a switch. The reporter, the operator and the scientist's young assistant moved involuntarily as though dodging, and blinked. Darrow shaded his eyes with one hand and proceeded as though nothing had happened.

"Here are the exclusive points of your story," he said to Hollowell, handing a sheet of yellow wireless forms. "I got them in McCarthy's office. They are messages from the unknown wielder of the mysterious power to his enemy, the political boss. There will be plenty who will conclude these messages to be the result of fanaticism, after the fact; that is to say, they will conclude some wireless amateur has taken advantage of natural phenomena and, by claiming himself the author of them, has attempted to use them again his enemy. Of course, the answer to that is that if the Unknown—let's call him Monsieur X—did not cause these strange things, he at least knew enough about them to predict them accurately."

class in elementary science, and had a very apt pupil in little Willie.

"Willie," said the teacher, "can you tell me the effects of heat and cold?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered Willie. "Heat expands and cold contracts."

"Very good," encouragingly responded the teacher. "Now give me an example."

"In hot weather," was the proud reply of the triumphant Willie, "the days are long, and in cold weather the days are short."

Farmer Crab's brook is noted for the number and size of its eels. Fishing therein is "strictly prohibited," which in itself is attraction enough for the snail boy.

The other evening an urchin was leaving the neighborhood rather hurriedly, when a youthful friend inquired:

"Caught anything, Bob?"

"Yes," replied Bob.

"What?"

"A cat."

"A cat?"

"Yes, a cat."

"A cat?"

"Yes, a cat."

"A cat?"

"Yes, a cat."

"A cat?"

"Yes, a cat."

"A cat?"

"Yes, a cat."

"A cat?"

"Yes, a cat."

"You just leave that to me," hummed Hollowell under his breath. The reporter had been glancing over the wireless forms, and his eyes were shining with delight.

"Here is the last one," said Darrow, producing a crumpled yellow paper from his pocket. "I went back after it."

"McCarthy: My patience is at an end. Your last warning will be sent you at nine thirty this morning. If you do not call on the Celtic at noon I shall strike. You are of a stubborn and a stiff-necked generation, but I am your lord and master, and my wrath shall be visited on you. Begone, or you shall die the death."

"That bluffed him out," said Darrow, "and I don't blame him. Now, Simmons," said he, turning to the operator, who had sat in utter silence, "how about it? Are you with us, or against us?"

"How do you mean?" demanded Simmons.

"This," said Darrow sharply. "The time has passed for concealment. Every message through the ether must now reach the public. We must send messages back. The case is out of private hands; it has become important to the people. Will you agree on your honor faithfully to transmit?"

He leaned forward, his indolent frame startlingly tense. "Are you afraid of McCarthy?"

"He's been good to me—it's a family matter," muttered the operator.

"Well—" Darrow arose, crossed to the operator, and whispered to him for a moment. "You see the seriousness—you are an intelligent man."

The operator turned pale.

"I hadn't thought of that," he muttered. "I hadn't thought of that. Of course I'm with you."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

"Bel?"

"No, too."

"His friend understood and wisely decided to turn back with Bob."

Jap Women Have Few Rights.

Until recent years, when a Japanese wife failed to present her husband with a son he was free to supplant her with a successor more fortunate, and even today the Japanese girl must always address her brother with the prefix "mister." Love-marriages are still little known in the "Land of the Rising Sun," wives receive little respect from their husbands, and it is significant of their condition in the present and the past that only recently have they been allowed to exchange visits or to open their mouths in the presence of their husbands or brothers.

AN EXTREME COLONIAL TYPE—BY JOHN HENRY NEWSON.

Home of Character No. 128

An extreme Colonial type of home appeals to many who admire a plain and stately exterior. It is a most imposing home for its size and cost. This home was planned to meet three requirements: a large living room, a separate rear stairs and not to exceed 26 feet by 32 feet in size. A brief inspection of the plan will show how this was worked out without eliminating other desired features. The detail of the interior finish is carried out in the same severe Colonial lines as the exterior, while the decorations and the electric fixtures increase the thoroughly homelike and restful air of this old-fashioned Colonial home, which can be planned with various types of exteriors.

In this connection it is well to explain that you can vary exteriors of all the designs shown on this page to meet your personal preferences. Mr. Newson will be glad to answer inquiries concerning such changes. Materials and forms of construction can also be changed to meet local or individual requirements. This design cost $4000 complete, as built with hot water heat, good plumbing and a good grade of material and workmanship throughout. Under favorable building conditions it could be built for about $3600. Using the most expensive materials, and under expensive conditions the cost should not exceed $4500.

PLAYER PIANO

Do you know that thousands of Player Pianos are being sold all over the United States and that there is a great demand for them? Are you not interested in one for the home? A special invitation is extended to you to call at my music store and see the Bjur Player. I have some fine music rolls and will give you a free demonstration any time you will call.
